1. Regarding commander@nsm88.org the account was deleted at the same time that Jeff Schoep signed the NSM Detroit organization over to James Hart Stern. In the case of this particular account Jeff Schoep would have been an administrator with privacy privileges. I would have never had access to the emails in the account, only option was to delete it at the time.
2. Regarding nsm88kv@gmail.com numerous attempts were made to get into this account without success. The recover number on Gmail only shows the last 2 number of the account holders phone number. Whatever this phone number is, it is not a telephone that I have ever possessed.
3. Regarding nsmchiefstaff@gmail.com I did have access to this account at one time. When I try to access it now or do the recover password option, it tells me the account does not exist. I have never deleted this account and the recover phone number should be my own.
4. Regarding nsmregionll@gmail.com my efforts from the beginning to recover this account have been in vain. The recovery phone number has been an unknown number since day one.
5. Regarding my personal Twitter account, I do have access to it via my saved credentials on my cell phone, but I cannot produce login credentials any other way. The account has had little to no activity since it is creation date years ago. The recovery email is an old AOL account that I no longer have access to.
